DEATH FROM DELIBIUM TREMERS .- A man by the name of Morris Whelen was found dead in a cell in the Ninth-street Station-house, about one o'clock yesterday morning. He was arrested in the afternoon previous on Hunt street, by Officer Bereaford, who supposed him at the time to be only drunk, but it appeared the unfortunate man was afflicted with delirium tremens. Coroner Cary held an inquest upon the body, and a verdict was rendered in paordance with the above facts.

DEATH BY INTEMPERANCE .- Yesterday after noon, a man by the name of John Kennedy died suddenly, in the Commercial Hospital, from the effects of dissipation. It appears that Kennedy had been an inmate of the institution a short time previous, and was discharged as cured. Yesterday he was taken ill and went to the hospital, and expired in a short time after his arrival. He resided on Everett street; and, we learn, leaves a wife and several children.

THE rush in the vicinity of the City Build. ing, yesterday, of the aspirants for the office of Policemen, was tremendous. The applicants were put through a course of sprouts unknown to those who were not admitted to the deliberations of the Board of Commissioners. To-day the Board will make their appointments, and to-morrow morning we hope to announce the names of the watchful guardians of the peace, dignity and honor of the citizens of Porkopolis, and further to proclaim that the country

Ir is said that an Insurance Company of this State, with an agency in this city, has been issuing policies, even up to this time, when it is known that it ceased paying losses half a year ago. If such is the case, it ought to be exposed. It is not always that a home company is good because it is chartered by our own laws. Let insurers be cautious, and see what bottom there is to those who take their risks.

As journalists we shall protect the interests of the people. Our pigeon-hole now contains facts relative to a certain, or uncertain, Insurance Company's Agency, not a thousand miles from Cincinnati P. O. In a few days we propose to open up.

Mons. Ernst's Exhibition Ball will take place on the 2d day of May, in Pike's Opera House. The parquette is to be floored the same as upon the occasion of the inauguration ball-the boxes and upper tier being reserved for the "old folks" and lookers-on, while the lower portion will be occupied by juvenile young America in "tripping the light fantastic." It will unquestionably be the ball of the season, and, judging from the preparations being made, it will be a brilliant affair.

THE election of Councilman in the First Ward, is, we understand, to be contested. The two Opposition judges claim that the vote for Cunningham and Hart is a tie vote, and that the candidates received 490 votes each. The Democratic judge claims one majority. We learn that Mr. Hart will take his seat, and that Mr. Cunningham will enter his protest, when the subject will be brought up for the action of the Board.

A RUNAWAY occurred yesterday on Catharine street, below Western row, which ended in an express wagon being smashed up, and the driver, a young lad by the name of Edwards, very severely, but not dangerously bruised:

In room No. 2, in the case of Mears against Horne and others, Judge Dickson overruled a motion for a continuance, and a my was sworn to try the issue, which involved a question as to the validity of an instrument purporting to be the will of John Mears, who died in 1855. The plaintiff contests the will ask the Court to set it aside, and to declare the order of probate void. He denies that it was ever legally executed, also, the capacity of John Mears to make the will and alleges, further, that it was procured by undue influence and by fraud.

The docume denies that the party died intestate, or that there was undue influence or fraud, and raisse an

The petition presenting the case of a pagative averment, the counsel for defense claimed the right of

Doo THIEVES.—A gentleman named Rosse, living on the Chio avenue, had stolen from his residence, a few evenings since, two raluable dogs—one a New-foundland and the others fine Setter. There has existed in our midst for some time past a gang of scounders who carry on the dog stealing business to a considerable extent, and many of our citizens have become victims to their prey.—Prizes or 5th.

"Two valuable dogs." In the name of all that is useful, we ask of what value is a dog in the gift of the prey.—The control of the city of the city of the control of the city of the cit the city? Is it valuable for what it cats? Is it valuable for the fleas it disseminates? for the nuisances it commits? for their howling and yelping o' nights? for the annoyance and profanity they cause to the wakeful and well, and the sufferings and imprecations they induce to the sick? are they valuable for their worrying hoge, snapping at horses and other animals that pass in our streets? are their values in the biting of children, and occasionally tearing a grown person? or are their great values to be found in their dissemination of hydrophobia, destroying now a cow, next some hogs, then a horse or two, then a human being or two, with the most horrible disease known to man? Valuable dogs! Why, there are probably forty thousand dogs in and about this city, and not one of them of any value whatever, but individually and collectively are unmitigated, worthless nuisances.

"Dog-stealing scoundrels!" Why, if an organized gang would steal all the dogs in the city, they, the stealers, would be the most city, they, the steaters, would be the most blessed institution among us. Splendid Newfoundland—and splendid fangs! Were the sufferings of poor Wright, who died of them the other day, less distressing—were his spasms less horrible, when trying to bite his family and friends, than if he had received his rabidness from a common cur? Are the fears of friends less excruciating, because their children were bitten by that *plendid dog! Out upon such canine sympathy! The dog-stealer, mean as he is, does better service to the community than the man who keeps what is a nuisance to everybody but himself—a dog.
Our City Council would do more good than is ever expected of them if they would have the owners of the brutes from $5 to $10 a head, and give the curs

MR. LEVI COPPIN, an old citizen, had his pocket-book abstracted from his pocket last evening, at the depot of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad. Baker, who was seen jostling Mr. Coffin at the time of the mysterious disappearance of his wallet, and lodged him in the Ninth-street Station-house for an examina-

LARGENY .- In the Hammond-street Stationhouse last night three persons were caged, each upon a charge of larceny. James Caldwell and James Overman were charged with stealing a lot of clothing, and John Leester was locked up for purloining some spoons from a steamer laying at the wharf. The trio will be presented this morning to his honor, Judge Pruden, who will, doubtless, award them their descrie.

Fifteenth Ward, had a large and enthusiastic meeting among themselves at the conclusion of their arduous labors yesterday morning, and unanimously resolved that Col. John Scott, of "Marble Hall," was a "human" and a gentleman, and they further tendered him their cordial thanks for his kindness in sending them a substantial collation.

POLICEMEN Morman and Grip, of the Third Ward, state that the petition sent in for their reappointment to the Police Commissioners was so sent without their knowledge or consent.

THOSE MIDNIGHT EDITIONS .- Says the Columthose MIDSTONE EDITIONS.—Says the columbus (O.) Statesman: One of the advantages of the change in the railroad time-tables is, that the innumerable editions of the Cincinnati papers (Commercial and Gazette) are played out. There were so many of these "midnight express," "11:30 P. M." and "morning" editions of these prints, and each edition so remarkably like its predecessor, that, as we heard an intel-ligent gentleman express it, they became an infernal nuisance to readers and everybody else. as the one appeared like an old reprint.

Poor Rich!—Wm. N. Rich, from Randolph County, North Carolina, on Saturday arrived in St. Louis, on his way to Kansas to locate lands. He was courteously met by two plausi-ble villains, one of whom succeeded in selling to him, for $300 in gold, three probably forged land warrants. The other rogue then told Rich that he would get the warrants certified for him, and was confidingly intrusted with them. Mr. Rich has not since seen either of his friends. He states that at home he never reads the papers, and that none are published in his dis-trict!-St. Louis Democrat.

Mr. Charles Dickens is in more domestic trouble. His squabbles are interminable. The entente cordiale between him and his publishers, Bradbury & Evans, has just come to an end, and with it a new leaf of "Boz's" domestic troubles is turned to the public gaze. Scarcely cooled down over the scandal of the little arrangement of separation from his wife, with his son he is again the subject of gossip. Dickens senior and Dickens junior have both been on terms intimate and affectionate with the Bradburys and the Evanses. For long years the senior Dickens has done all his publishing business with that firm, and, in course of time and association, the junior Dickens has gained upon the affections of a fair and blooming offspring of the junior member of that pub-lishing firm. Charles the first thought proper to dissolve his relationship with the great book establishment; Charles the second sees no relationship with the business affairs of the fathers and the love affairs of the children. The sepior Dickens is at liberty to leave Bradbury, and the junior Dickens claims the privilege o clinging to Evans. The son is betrothed to the young lady, purely and simply on his own account, and, therefore, disregards the paternal order forbidding intimate relations between the families. This might have ended here quietly, but the father has sought to annoy his son in seeking petty revenge. The young man was a candidate for membership at the Garrick Club on his father's introduction; but, on this daring to love against orders, the father scored his name out of the candidate's book. This has brought the fact before the public. The committee of the Garrick Club, in spite of the father's proceeding, offered to elect him; he, however, has declined. This unceasing squabbling attracts particular attention to the Dick-gus family. Three of the brothers are said to be either separated from their wives or suing for divorces.

The Sickles Trial.

Washington, April 5.—Shortly after the meeting of the Court this morning, the talesmen were severally called, for the purpose of completing the number of jurors, only five from the regular panel having been selected yesterday. No additional juror was to-day accepted until the twenty-fourth name was called.

The disqualification was on the general ground of having formed opinions from newspapers, or conversations with witnesses, and therefore in-capacitated from rendering a fair and impartial

No additional juror had been selected when The pressure to obtain admission to the Court-room was not so great this morning as it was yesrorday, for the reason of the improbability to obtain a jury. The Court-room, however, is filled. The box, or cage, in which the prisoner sits, has been removed from the out-of-the-way corner in which it was yester-day, and placed directly in front of the jury. The table for the lawyers occupies the inter-vening space. It looks a good deal like a hen-coop, with a chair inside. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed by the friends of Mr. Sickles, at subjecting him to the indignity of occu-pying this cage, particularly as there is nothing but the usage of this Court to justify, and even the usage has not been uniform. The District Attorney refused to interfere in the mat-ter, and hence the necessity for applying to the Court yesterday.

There are no ladies in Court, and no accommodation for any. There appears to be a greater desire to-day to give facilities to the reporters. The father of Mr. Sickles, and the father of Mrs. Sickles, Mr. Bagieli, occupy seats together. Among the friends of the accused in attendance are Peter Byrnes, of New York, and Hon. Mr. Eustis, of Louisiana,

The crier opened the Court at twenty min-utes past ten. Some time clapsed before the prisoner was brought in. The five jurors who ere selected yesterday were called and answered to their names.

The Judge suggested that the list of tales-nen should be called in their order. The District Attorney said that he preferred the adoption of the balloting system; that the names should be placed in a box and called as they were drawn out.

Mr. Stanton proferred the calling of the names in the order which they appeared on the list, as the defense had arranged its challenges in that way.

The Judge ordered the names to be placed in the box and called as they were drawn.

While this matter was in course of arrangement, the prisoner was conducted into court and took his seat in the deck. He appeared calm and composed, though his features were marked with the lines of deep greef.

The clerk then proceeded to draw the names of the talescent.

Mr. Sickles stood in the dock, conferring with one of his counsel, as the jurors were in course of questioning.

The first called was George J. Johnson. had formed or expressed an opinion in relation to the guilt or innocense of the accused. It was founded on what he had heard and read. and he did not think that he could form an impartial judgment. Disqualified.
Wm. Jackson had several times expressed an opinion, and did not think that he could render an impartial verdict. Disqualified. John Garrett had expressed an opinion so far that he thought Mr. Sickles was justified in killing Mr. Key. (Sensation.) He does not know any thing of the circumstances except

The District Attorney thought that further inquiry was unnecessary, The Judge thought so too, as the juror was inquestionably disqualified.

Thomas M. Potter had formed an opinion based on newspaper reports, and does not think he could render an impartial verdict. Disqualified.

Charles Edmundson had formed and expressed an opinion, founded on more rumor,

B. F. Middleton had formed an opinion, and his prejudices or feelings might warp his judg-ment in such a manner as to prevent him from rendering an impartial verdict. Elias D. White, James A. Reilly, Theodore F. Boucher, Thos. J. Galt and Wm. Baldwin had severally expressed opinions, and could not act as impartial jurors.

The manner of most of the gentlemen ques-tioned in declaring that they had formed and expressed opinions, was very emphatic.

Thomas Orne had formed an opinion, but did not know that his bias was such as to prevent him from giving a proper verdiet.

The Judge-Will you say it is not?

A.-I would rather feel freer. Disqualified Samuel Duval, Robert M. Sutton, C. C. Whittlesoy, Wm. Dowling, Richard H. Downs and John G. Dowey had formed opinions, and could not act as impartial jurors. Some of them spoke of their opinions as being fixed, and some as being decided.

Robert W. Hoe had formed an opinion, but would not say that he could not render an impartial verdict. From his present impressions e would rather be excused.

Mr. Stanton submitted that if the juror's evidence he would be a competent juror.

Mr. Phillips contended that he was compe tent. The only test of the qualification of the juror was as to the question of his being a liber home, free to the influence of the testinony. He was understood to reply to that in the affirmative. The Judge said that he had not so understood the juror.

Mr. Phillips to the juror—If put upon the jury, could you render an impartial verdict according to the evidence given in the case?

Juror—I should not like to risk it.

The list of talesmen was exhausted when only three having been sworn out of the seventy

The District Attorney asked the Court to direct that seventy-five more tolesmen be sum-moned, and that John W. Smoot should be returned with them. He supposed the Marshal could return the list at half-past two o'clock. The Deputy Marshal, Mr. Phillips, said that he could not return them to-day. He might have returned them a list yesterday, but he would now have to go to the country for them.

The Marshal, Mr. Seldon, said that Mr. Smoot had told him that he was unwell and did not think he could come. Mr. Smoot was therefore excused.

The Judge directed the Marshal to summe venty-five talesmen for to-morrow, and to urnish the counsel on each side with the list this evening.

The jurors were then allowed to separate with the usual caution. According to the present indications the tria will occupy at least two weeks.

From Washington. NEW YORK, April 5 .- The Herald's Washing ton correspondent says that Ran Runnells, the newly-appointed Consul at San Juan Del Sur Nicaragua, left here to-day with dispatches for Gen. Lamar, and also with dispatches to Commodore McClung, of the Home Squadron, and Commodore Long, of the Pacific Squadron. He goes out in to-morrow's steamer from New York. These dispatches are understood to be as stated yesterday, of a peremptory charac-ter, and will show to the Government of Nicaragua that the United States will no longer submit to its double-dealing. The policy of Sir William Gore Ousley has been weak enough, as it is feared to yield to the influence of Mr. Manning, the British Consul in Nicaragua, and exceeded his instructions. He will prove himself unfit for the important task he undertook, and ought to be imme-diately recalled by the British Government. Great activity prevails in our Navy Yards, in getting ready vessels for immediate service. The Lancaster, Hartford, San Jacinto, Con-stellation, John Adams, Levant, Portsmouth, Mohecan, Wyoming and Narraganset have been ordered to be prepared for sea imme-diately.

Washington, April 5 .- The Quartermaster's Department is ourtailing its expenses as rapidly as the public service will admit. In addition to the two military posts on the route to Utal three are to be dispensed with in Texas, and orders have been issued to stop the purchase of mules, etc.

Advices from Africa say that the Africas Squadron is still repeating its monotonous drudging up and down the coast for the distance of 5,000 miles. The health of the men was tolerably good. The Dale left Sierro Loone on the 8th of February for Monrovia; thence northward to Balhurst, Tonce, Cape de Verds, and further as the public service may require.

The recent order to fit out the new steamers is not with special reference to the events in Nicaragua. The design is to relieve the vessels in the Pacific, and other squadrons.

The dispatches sent to Gen. Lamar are, it is represented, of the most positive character. They instruct him to demand from Nicaragua an apology, restitution and indemnity-on the failure to comply with which, he is to ask for his passports. The Home Squadron, it is said, will be strengthened and the vessels placed at the disposal of Gen. Lamar, to use them for the defense of American citizens, their property and their vested rights. The dispatches to flag-officers McCluney and Long, commanding respectively the Home and Pacific Squadrons, are to obey the orders of Gen. Lamar.

On failing to receive them, they are to exer cise latitudinous discretion. The usual diplomatic course has been pursued in informing the foreign legations of the intentions of the Government.

The Fugitive-Slave Case.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—This afternoon the counsel for the defense moved that Commissioner Longstreth hand the case over to another Judge, for the reason that the Commissioner had prejudicated the case, and acted as though he advocated for the claimants, it having been shown in the evidence that the Commissioner pronounced the first power of attorney of the impressions would not prevent him from ren-dering a verdict according to the weight of the that he would be obliged to release the slave if arrested under it, and that by his advice a new power of attorney was obtained. Benjamin Brewster, for the claimants, ar gued that it was pre-eminently the duty of the Commissioner to give this information before he issued a warrant.

The Commissioner overruled the motion.

The evidence for the defense is mostly from negroes. It was endeavored to prove that the leged slave arrived at Harrisburg or April, 1855, which the claimant alleges es-caped in July in the same year. One witness, an intelligent colored man, swore that he met him in Baltimore as a freeman in 1845, and in Philadelphia in 1849, and also met him in Harrisburg in 1853. His evidence was straight and forward, and was not shaken by a rigid cross-examination. Ten o'clock .- There are prospects of a late sitting.

THE CENTURY OF WOMEN .- An ancient Ger-THE CENTURY OF WOMEN.—An ancient German legend, quoted by Florence Nightingale, in her admirable account of the Kniserswerth Hospital for Nurses, long years before the Crimean war had tried her noble nature and made her name immortal, speaks of the nineteenth century as the destined "Century of Women." In this happy age, womanhood was to rule the world, and woman setting herself to man, "like perfect music unto noble words," was to subdue all the discords of the earth. Up to subdue all the discords of the earth. Up to this time the prophesy has received many confirmations. Never before has woman played so great a part for good and ill in the world's affairs as during the last fifty years. Our prisons and our poor bless the names of Mrs. Fry and Miss Dix, with their myriad sisters of mercy. A woman endears monarchy to the ris-ing republicanism of Great Britain by her virtues and her wisdom. Three European thrones have been filled within the century "Women's rights" have invaded the courts of law, the schools of medicine, the sacred desk itself. We are, indeed, apparently upon the very verge of a general gynowacy in authorship and in actual life.

The foreign policy of the United States, so far as the United States have had any foreign policy for the last two years, has been chiefly directed, as our readers know, by a woman— an accomplished, high-minded and honorable lady, now threatened, as we regret to see, with the wrath of the President and the abuse of his confidential organ, for doing in Nicaragua precisely what the President has from the first

And it now appears that the most dangerous enemy to our policy in Mexico is also a woman. The wife of Mr. Otway, the English Minister at Mexico, a Spanish lady of character and ability, is in such relations with Madame Miramon as have determined her to make the English Le-gation perfectly subservient to the wishes and the views of M. de Gabriac, the French Envoy, and of the Church party. Her success has so far been brilliant and formidable. How can Mr. Buchanan and Mr. McLane, his new representative, hope to resist such an influence? All the Bourbons in the world would not give our bachelor President half so much trouble as he will surely encounter in the attempt to match his celibate and vacillating will against the single and indomitable purpose of a St lady in this the "century of women."-N.
